Recycling, Environmental and Sustainability Education, Reef Safe Sunscreen Awareness, the ReSource Depot Thrift Store and many more incredible initiatives set forth by Island Green Living all depend on the generosity of people who care about the future of St. John, the Virgin Islands and the Caribbean. Grants, private donors, partnerships and fundraisers like this one are what keep these essential programs in motion. So, take a moment today to grab a raffle ticket for \$50 \(or six for \$250!\) to support Island Green Living and a sustainable future for Love City!

To those of you who have already purchased tickets, or do so today, I wish you all good luck in the drawing on May 3, which will be live on Island Green Living's Facebook Page. And to each and every one of you who has supported Island Green Living over the years, and continue to do so, I send you a heartfelt THANK YOU. When I moved here in 2012, there was no recycling program. Styrofoam, plastic bags and straws were an overindulgent commonality. Reef Safe sunscreen had not yet been heard of or acknowledged in the USVI. We are in a very different place today...

You see, it isn't just the programs that Island Green Living runs that keep the momentum of sustainability moving on St. John. It's also the awareness and education that they offer to the community. We are so lucky to have Island Green Living on St. John, pioneering new green initiatives that other island communities can only dream about. So, THANK YOU for supporting them!
